Why does sun exposed hair need protection..

- The sun can really take its toll on hair both color treated and natural haircolor.
- UVA/UVB rays can damage the cuticle causing hair to become dull and prone to frizz and fly-always.
- UV rays can also penetrate the cuticle leading to color fading on all hair types.
- Pool chemicals and sea salts can bind to the hair, intensifying haircolor dehydration caused by sun exposure.
- As a result haircolor can turn brassy, grayish or even green and hair texture is dry and rough.

Cleanse- After Sun Shampoo Gently cleanses and removes minerals, chlorine and salt deposits while helping to repair sun- damaged hair.

Repair-After Sun Mask instantly detangles and protects and revitalizes sun-damaged hair with intense moisture replenishment and repair.

Hair Cleansing Cream helps remove chlorine buildup and minerals that attach to the hair.

Pureology Purifying Shampoo from the essential system frees hair from color- dulling residue and buildup caused by chlorine, hard water, minerals and styling products.

Shades EQ Clear Glaze seals the cuticle of the hair, protects color and adds shine.

Youngblood Mineral Base Makeup Radiance Moisture Tint hydrates with marine extracts, covers with a sheer wash of color and protects with vitamin E and antioxidants.

Hot Tips

Take Showers no longer than 5 minutes with lukewarm water to avoid drying out the skin.

Use body washes that cleanse and moisturize in one.

When used together, sunscreens and antioxidants provide highly effective protection against UV-induced photoaging and skin damage.

Sunscreens are a protectant for the epidermis of the skin.

The only FDA approved physical sun filters are 5% zinc oxide and 6% Titanium Dioxide.

We recommend using Skin Ceuticals Sheer Physical UV Defense SPF 50. Ground breaking ultra sheer texture with no chemical filters for all skin types, even for very sensitive skin. With Broad Spectrum high UV protection and paraben -free

We all help you choose the ideal pairing of sunscreen and antioxidant to provide highly effective protection for your skin.
